Opportunities for Service Leavers

Are you leaving the Armed Forces and considering a new career? Babcock would like to hear from you.

The skills and experience you have gained during your service could be a great fit to help us support our military customers and create a safe and secure world, together.

We can support you to make the transition into a civilian workplace and offer you challenging and rewarding opportunities.

Babcock International Group is proud to support the UK's Armed Forces and Reservists

We signed the Armed Forces Covenant in 2013 and are committed to the Total Support Force concept, helping our Armed Forces to deliver flexible solutions around the world.

We're a major employer of Service Leavers and Reservists through our active recruitment approach and because of this, we were awarded a Gold Award in the Ministry of Defence's Armed Forces Covenant Employer Recognition Scheme 2015.

The scheme recognises employers who actively support Defence while encouraging other organisations to adopt the same behaviours in their workplace.

Supporting Reserve Forces

Through our Reserve Forces policy, we support our Reservist colleagues, for example, providing paid time off for military training.

Many of our employees support the British Armed Forces through a broad range of contract relationships and live this commitment every day.

Employment for the Armed Forces Community

We support members of the Armed Forces community such as Service Leavers, Veterans, Reservists, Uniformed Cadet Instructors and their spouses.

Our commitment to the Armed Forces Covenant

We live our commitment every day by supporting Reservists with up to 10 days special paid leave to cover reserve duties so our employees don't have to use their annual leave each year for Reservist activities.

What can Babcock offer you?

As an international defence, aerospace and security company, Babcock has been a trusted partner of the British Armed Forces for decades.
